Program on Creative Placemaking

The Center for Creative Placemaking (CCP) provides expertise on how to utilize the arts and culture as tools for community, social and economic development. Creative Placemaking.... You've heard the buzz, now find out what it is and how it can support the economic development of my community.

--Learn more about Creative Placemaking and why this approach to planning is a powerful model for sustainable social and economic development.

--CCP is working on a dynamic evaluation model which can help your community stakeholders make the best decisions about where to focus time, energy and resources for the greatest impact (or the most significant change).

--See how this process builds on your existing data to demonstrate effective change and goal attainment.
