Camp Tecumseh

The Salvation Army - Summer Camps give children an opportunity to experience much more than fresh air. Many people have fond memories of time spent at Summer camp. Whether it be the camp food, swimming, playing outside or simply spending time with friends; it is engraved in our minds and it is an experience that a person will never forget.

Camp Tecumseh is one of those camps. The Salvation Army Camp is located on almost 400 acres of rolling hills in rural Hunterdon County, New Jersey and provides underprivileged children with memories that they will carry with them into adulthood. The camping experience is more than just a pleasant vacation. Children learn new skills and self-reliance and trained counselors are on hand who know and understand the campers' emotional needs and problems. Camping, canoeing, miniature golf, swimming, fishing, hiking and crafts are just a few of the action packed activities youth participate in during their week-long stay. Skill classes are also offered such as swimming lessons, boating, drama & music instruction.

The Salvation Army Dover Corps offers this one week supervised off-site camping experience to 40 community children between the ages of seven and twelve throughout Morris County. Summer Camp is a great opportunity for these kids to get away from home and enjoy the beauty and clean air of Northern New Jersey. Most campers who go to Camp Tecumseh have never had the opportunity to go away from their home environment and attend camp for a week; something we might take for granted. Salvation Army staff transports the kids to and from the facility and takes several trips there throughout the summer.

Contact continues after the children return home. Often, entire families receive benefits from these camping experiences through programs and services. The Salvation Army has to offer year round.
