improving energy efficiency in new and existing schools; implementation strategies for effective programs; investment and financing opportunities, including NJ BPU programs that provide financial and technical assistance; case studies of school districts that have successfully improved energy efficiency.

NEW SUSTAINABLE JERSEY ACTIONS RELATED TO ARTS AND CREATIVE CULTURE:

This workshop will provide a great opportunity to learn about the outstanding resources that are offered to help our townships, businesses, schools, faith-based organizations and residents learn about some new arts initiatives which will promote sustainability in your community!

Using Creative Assets To Achieve Points in the Sustainable Jersey Program

May 14, 2013
3 PM-5 PM
Bloomfield College
College Hall (Rm. 16)
REGISTER

Does your sustainability plan include the arts and culture? Sustainable Jersey, ArtPride, Bloomfield College, Creative New Jersey, The Center for Creative Placemaking, MorrisArts and the National Consortium for Creative Placemaking are offering a training session where you will learn how to connect your creative assets to social, economic and community development planning to shape more sustainable communities.

Come learn how your municipality can use its creative assets to achieve points in the Sustainable Jersey Program. This session will feature a short overview of Sustainable Jersey and its current “arts and culture” actions. Hear from Creative Monmouth, which has already established a creative team, conducted asset inventories and is developing a creative placemaking plan. There will be time for Q&A.

Find complete information on all upcoming events and trainings at www.sustainablejersey.com “Events and Trainings”– Visit the Sustainable Jersey website to find out about other events where SUSTAINABLE JERSEY is participating – such as GARDEN STATE GREENFEST on May 17TH AND 18TH and Learn how Green Teams can get FREE ADMISSION TO GREENFEST ON BOTH DAYS!
