Have you registered for the August 13-16 NLC University Leadership Summit on Leadership through Innovation yet? This is an opportunity you won't want to miss.

Special Tour of Google!

In addition to a fantastic set of seminars on how you can drive innovation in your city government and local economy, NLC is excited to announce that you will also meet with top leaders at Google to explore how technology is reshaping the way we live, work and govern.

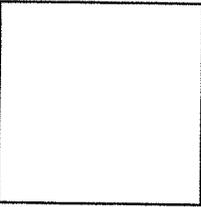

All Summit participants are invited to the Google headquarters on the final afternoon of the Summit to join in substantive conversations with several of Google's teams, including Civic Innovation, Google Fiber, and Google X. These teams are working on a wide array of issues relevant to local governments, from increasing the transparency and utility of city data to enhancing the capacity for economic development through dramatically faster Internet connections.

In addition to the tour and these informative discussions, you'll get demonstrations of several of Google's latest technological developments, and a reception on campus.

Learn more about how Google's approach to fostering new ideas can help and inspire city leaders.

I'm looking forward to seeing you in Silicon Valley this August!
