CITY SUMMIT

PITTSBURGH · NOVEMBER 16-19, 2016

Leading a large city or small town in 2016 isn't easy, but we know you're up to the task. We also know a few thousand people who can help.

Why Pittsburgh?

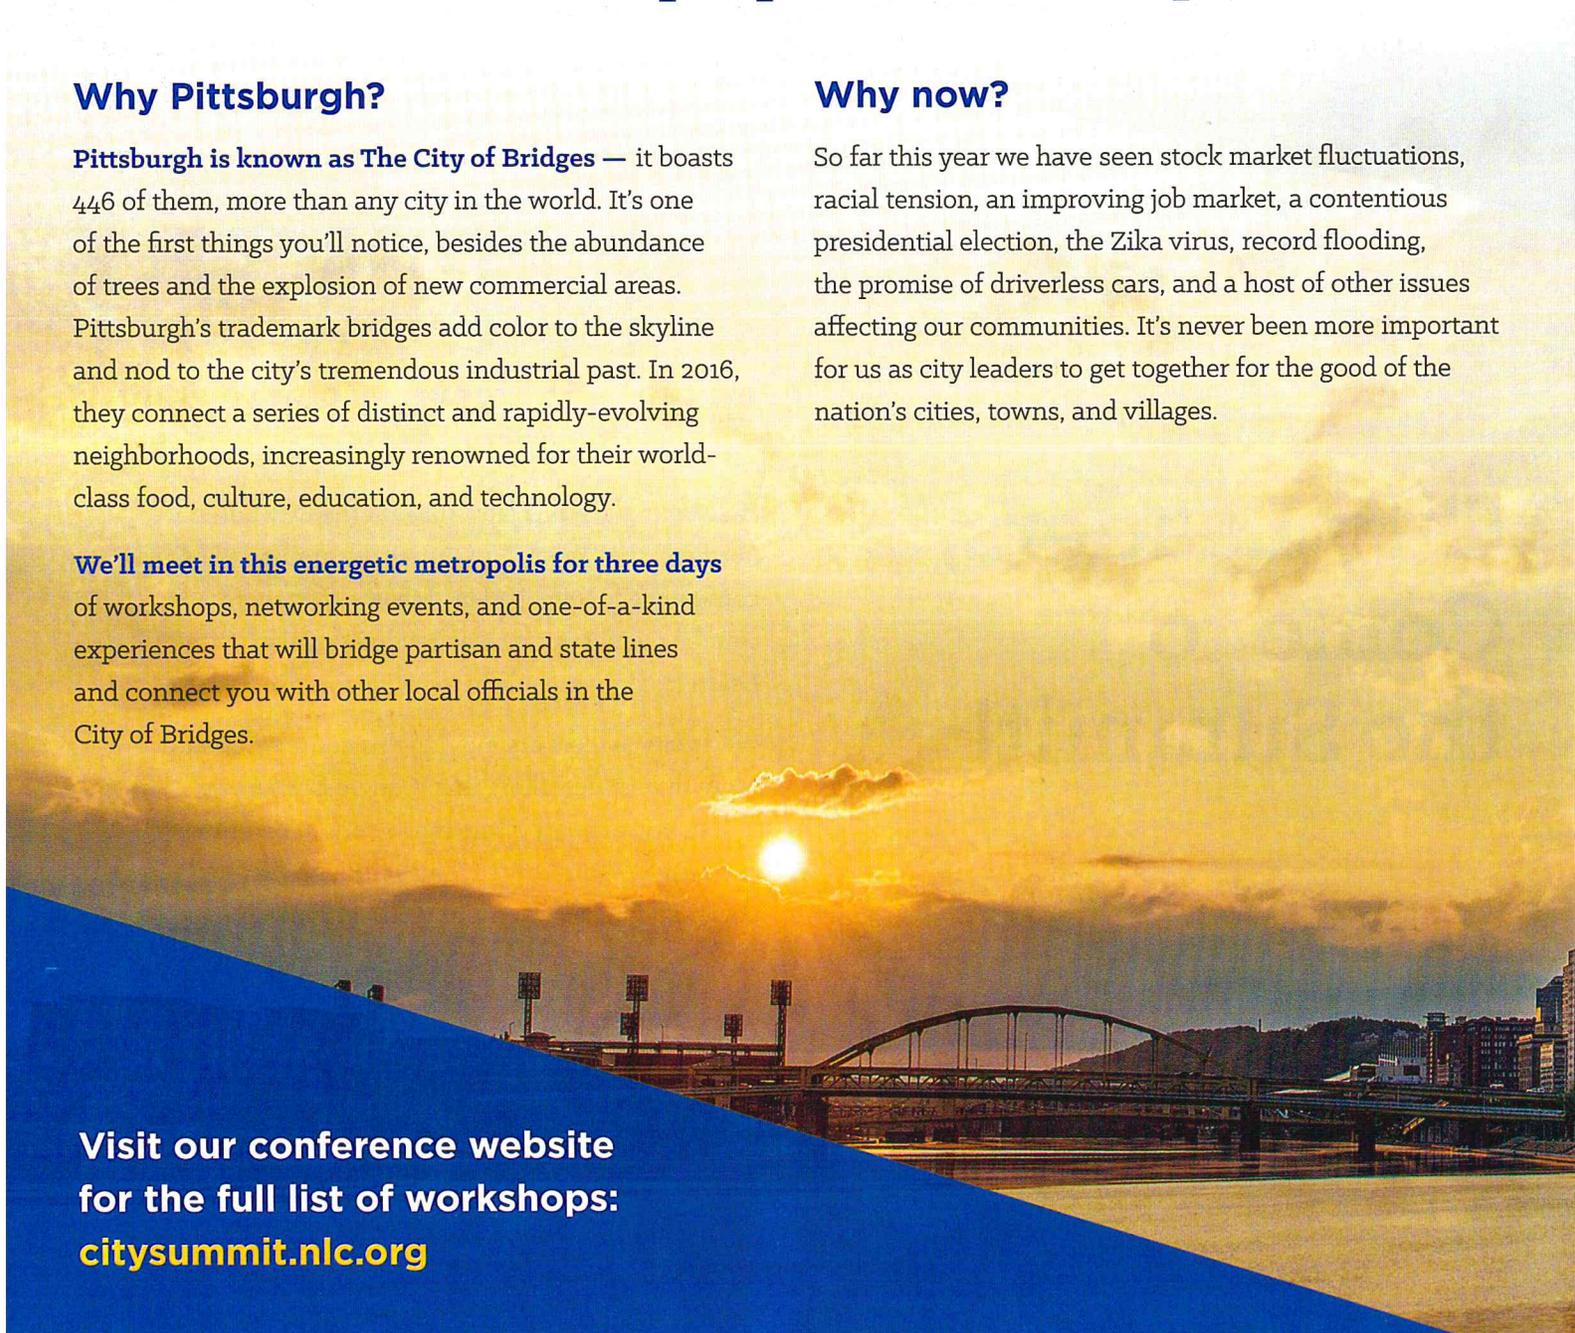

Pittsburgh is known as The City of Bridges — it boasts 446 of them, more than any city in the world. It's one of the first things you'll notice, besides the abundance of trees and the explosion of new commercial areas. Pittsburgh's trademark bridges add color to the skyline and nod to the city's tremendous industrial past. In 2016, they connect a series of distinct and rapidly-evolving neighborhoods, increasingly renowned for their world-class food, culture, education, and technology.

We'll meet in this energetic metropolis for three days of workshops, networking events, and one-of-a-kind experiences that will bridge partisan and state lines and connect you with other local officials in the City of Bridges.

Why now?

So far this year we have seen stock market fluctuations, racial tension, an improving job market, a contentious presidential election, the Zika virus, record flooding, the promise of driverless cars, and a host of other issues affecting our communities. It's never been more important for us as city leaders to get together for the good of the nation's cities, towns, and villages.

If you've enjoyed the Congress of Cities in the past, you'll love the City Summit. If you've never attended the Congress of Cities, join us for the first year under our new conference name at one of the most beautiful convention centers in the country.

YOUTH PROGRAM

NLC has a special program just for the ambitious high schoolers who attend the conference. Gather your city's youth council to share the conference experience – full details are on the conference website.

EXPOSITION HALL

Meet over 300 vendors to find a solution that you can bring home. Visit our Smart Cities Pavillion and be the first to hear about the latest inventions for cities, and pick up a unique souvenir from Pittsburgh at the local market square.

BIG IDEAS FOR SMALL CITIES

Back by popular demand, Big Ideas for Small Cities is a series of insightful talks designed to inspire creativity among attendees from smaller communities. Speakers have fifteen minutes each to tell the story about a forward-thinking idea that changed their city.

NETWORKING

Build a network you can rely on your entire career at the largest gathering of local leaders in the country. Throughout the conference, we'll have receptions and events for you to learn from your peers and enjoy the company of your peers.
