The President of the United States To Address Delegates at the NLC Conference Monday, March 9

The National League of Cities is honored to announce that the president of the United States has accepted our invitation to speak at the opening session of NLC's Congressional City Conference on Monday morning, March 9. President Obama's choice to speak at the conference underscores the value of local governance and the critically important role that local elected officials play in our nation.

It's not too late to register for The Congressional City Conference to attend this historic event!

Please note: We are changing the schedule for some of our workshops to accommodate the president. Download the free "NLC GO" app to get the latest updates on times and locations.
