Subject: Discover DEP Podcast: Piping Plover

Dear Municipal Clerk:

This week's episode of Discover DEP is now live on the DEP website. It focuses on the piping plover, a small, shore-loving bird that is endangered in the state of New Jersey. Christina Davis, piping plover expert and environmental specialist in the Endangered and Nongame Species Program, joins Bob Bostock to discuss this little bird and its life at the Jersey Shore.

This episode can be found at <http://www.nj.gov/dep/podcast/>.

For more information on the piping plover, please visit http://www.state.nj.us/dep/fgw/ensp/beachnester_info.htm and <http://www.njfishandwildlife.com/ensp/pdf/end-thrtened/plover.pdf>.

In addition to accessing the podcast on the DEP homepage, you can download our podcasts and subscribe to future editions through iTunes and Google Play.

The podcast is produced by the Office of Communications and the Division of Information Technology. If you have suggestions for future podcasts, or other feedback, please email podcast@dep.nj.gov.

Please, contact me if you have any further questions. Regards.
